Learners approach the world from an inquiry stance.

The American Association of School Librarians (AASL) empowers leaders to transform teaching and learning. The Shared Foundations infographic set summarizes Competencies from the AASL Standards Framework for Learners and suggests some actions school librarians can take to get started with the standards. SCHOOL LIBRARIANS LEAD

- Implement an inquiry process that ignites natural curiosity and requires student questioning.
- Design systems that promote flexible and collaborative teaching and learning.
- Create an environment that fosters and honors persistence, resilience, risk-taking, innovation, and learning from failure.
- Engage in ongoing reflection and professional learning relating to inquiry process and design thinking.
